A SCHOLARLY SUNDAY SERMON BY THE REV. HERBERT H. MOTT.

Subject: Can a Man De as He Likes? Boston, Mass. - The following sermon was contributed to The Christian Register by the Rev. Herbert H. Mott. It is entitled "Can a Man Do as He Likes?" and the text is: "Choose you this day who you will serve."-Joshua

Can a man do as he likes? Of course not! you say. All sorts of barriers hedge him round. He would like to fly as the birds fly, but the weight of his flesh and bones keeps plodding along the ground. He is born poor or stupid; consequently he can neither buy a steam yacht nor set the Thames on fire, though he would like dearly to do both. The force of public opinion compels him to don a tall silk hat and a frock coat when he would much prefer to go about in a golf cape and a shooting jacket. The force of public law compels him to run his auto at ten miles an hour when he very much wishes to spin along joyously at the rate of thirty. Every man exists under a set of compulsions. He is obliged to submit to many limitations, natural and artificial, and he is compelled, by pushes and pulls and pressures he is unable to resist, to do many things he doesn't want to do.

Nevertheless, in spite of a man's abject slavery in certain directions, is there not some small space, some little area, in which, instead of being a slave, he is actually and truly free? a department of life and conduct in which he can do as he likes?

The old doctrine-the doctrine believed by our fathers, and by nearly the whole of humanity, civilized and uncivilized, in every part of the world, from the beginning of recorded timelife and conduct; that in all vital matters, in all matters that have to do with the moral quality of life, a man can do as he likes. Our fathers held that, whenever we stand at a point where two roads diverge, we are able to choose, select, determine, which road to pursue. In such a situation the casting vote remains with us.

Whenever two or more governments, leaders, employers, claim our allegiance, we can "choose whom we will serve." This is true, said our fathers, no matter how severe the pressure. The temptation, urgency, force of circumstances, may be so great as to resemble compulsion. It appears as if we were obliged to take one road rather than the other. This, said our fathers, is appearance only. In reality, whenever two or more alternatives present themselves, whenever two roads open before us, the decision remains with us. It is with us to say yes or no, to lift the latch or not to lift it, to take the left or the right. No matter how great the pressure brought to bear on us, in the last resort we can always choose poverty instead of riches, captivity instead of freedom. suffering instead of ease, and instead we can always choose death. This is the old doctrine, and, although it has stood both the test of time and the test of experience, there appears to be, in these days, a widely spread tendency to ignore it. No one toast, leaving the crusts at the side of denies that circumstances exercise a powerful influence over our lives, but the tendency nowadays is to ascribe "When I was a little boy I always everything to circumstances.

However many excuses your kind heart makes for him, you will still blame the man; for you will be convinced, however bad his surroundings and his bringing up, being a man, he could have kept straight in spite of all, as many another has done. You know, in your soul, that, however great the obstacles, being a man, he was still master of himself. He might have chosen differently. He might have taken the right road instead of the wrong one, if only he had tried hard enough. You feel, after all is said and done, he was, in this matter, able to do as he liked. The next moment he is killed by a Russian shell, and his crew push off, only just in time to save

Why do we regard this man as a hero? Why was a public funeral held in his honor by his countrymen? Why do we praise him? Because we feel the brave action was due to him, and to no thing and no one else. Because we feel that he stood where two ways running blood and matter. I had tried diverged-the way of duty and the way of safety-and that he was master of the situation. He determined which application gave me instant relief, and road to take. Out of his own brave will, out of his own courageous soul. Soap and three boxes of Culticura Ointhe chose the right way. The decision lay not with circumstances, conditions, previous training, or ancestry, but with himself. We feel that he, and he alone, was responsible, and that therefore to him, and to him alone, belongs the credit and the praise. We cannot help blaming the criminal, we cannot help praising the hero, but, if criminal and hero were simply the victims of circumstance, to do so would be meaningless. We have no right to condemn the criminal if he cannot help doing what he does. There is no sense in honoring the hero if the heroism is due to education or to surrounding conditions; that is, to something other than the hero. Yet we do condemn the one, and we do give our homage to the other. We cannot help ored boxes, and left them there to ourselves. The praise and the blame hatch out, with the remarkable result | we bestow are involuntary acknowledgment that, in spite of all the theories closet philosophers may spin, there is an ineradicable conviction in the human heart that we are able, in the last resort, to do as we like, and that as a consequence we are responsible before God and man both for our Co., Toledo, O. deeds and for our thoughts.

He Gives Grace.

"Bounteous is Jehovah in His nature; to give is His delight. His gifts society. He preys upon his kind. His are beyond measure precious, and are as freely given as the light of the sun. He gives grace to His elect because He wills it, to His redeemed because of His covenant, to the called because of His promise, to believers because they seek it, to sinners because they can you expect? True, he has been to | need it. He gives grace abundantly, seasonably, constantly, readily, sovereignly; doubly enhancing the value of the boon by the manner of His bestowal. Reader, how blessed it is, as the years roll round and the leaves begin again to fall, to enjoy such an unfading promise as this: 'The Lord will give grace." "-Spurgeon.

How to Win Souls For Christ.

Andrew teaches Christians still the first lesson in soul-winning: Go for your own brother. That is, try to bring to Christ those whom you love, those nearest to you. It makes no difference whether the nearness is of blood or sympathy. You will succeed where Christianity is to win the world by this process alone—neighbor influencing neighbor, friend influencing friend. It is like leaven. One part of yeast will permeate two thousand parts of dough, but only by changing the parts next to it, and so working its way through the mass.

The Worker's Reward.

An English drunkard said to a Salvation Army lassie, who spoke to him about his soul: "You must be well paid for this. I suppose you expect as much as half a crown for getting me to sign the pledge." She replied: "I'm better paid than that. I expect to get a whole crown, and there'll be stars in it beside."
